SF Chronicle
15 June 73

Nixon Home Improvement Total Rises

Washington

Federal officials yesterday increased the number of Secret Service-requested improvements at President Nixon's San Clemente estate, bringing to $460,312 the estimate of government funds spent there in the name of presidential security.

The list, compiled by the General Services Administration at the request of the White House, and made public by the agency and presidential aides, represents a full accounting of federally financed work on the President's oceanside property, officials

[illegible] Wednesday night [illegible] double [illegible] disclosed [illegible]

[illegible] the new [illegible] White Hou[illegible]

[illegible] interior [illegible] in the walls [illegible] $842 for [illegible] a gazebo into [illegible] $1780 for [illegible] existing wor[illegible] Secret Service [illegible] for road [illegible] from the government compound outside the property into the residence; and $1650 more for construction of three guard houses and a gate house than the $22,000 reported Wednesday.

Associated Press